The standard practice of organizing things would not be complete without the simultaneous organization of thoughts. Each item is traditionally made to elicit the values and core principles of keeping organized, focusing on the way that ideas and thoughts can be genuinely captured neatly together through design.

INDEN Est.1582

Exquisite Leather Fashion Accessories

In 1582, Japan, INDEN began crafting durable, functional designs for the popular Samurai warriors to use as decorations for war armo with light-weight, flexible, leather. Over 400 years later, INDEN continues to make high-end leather designs for everyday wear. The long history of the brand stands firmly behind the high-quality deer leather and the natural sheen of wooden lacquer that is adorned by hand on the exterior of each item. The lacquer not only protects the leather but gives the design a unique, hand-pressed pattern that makes every INDEN product truly one-of-a-kind.

OUR PICKS

Seven Treasure

The Seven Treasures (Shippou) refers to the seven treasures of Buddhism: silver, gold, coral, lapis lazuli, agate, seashell, and amber - rare and precious products. The pattern means forever, linked with lover, family, and friends. It is also known for ushering in good relationships and harmony.

Chevron

In Japan, the Chevron pattern represents a bow on the war field, taking its shape from arrow fletching. This shape is used as a lucky charm in different kinds of ceremonies like weddings and graduations and represents determination based on a famous phrase saying that once an arrow is fired, it never returns.
